

What to look for in a snowmobile trail when planning a trip with your kids!

- Find trails close to home OR trails near hotels, restaurants, restrooms, & other warm, rest area for before, during, &/or after your ride.

- Look for frequently groomed trails. By checking the grooming status, you can gain a better understanding of the trails difficulty level.

- Understand the distance of the trail. Choose a short loop route OR a trail with a scenic end point to add more anticipation to the ride.

- Do research on the trail & make sure you avoid dangerous avalanche terrain.

- Try to find out what wildlife is frequently spotted in the area & keep a look out while on the ride.

- Look for professional guides to take you & your family out on the trail. This can be a more educational experience for the whole family.

- Find trails with good stopping points where you can pull off to the side & play in the snow
